At Tennsco, we have been monitoring and continuously educating ourselves on COVID-19. We are committed to ensuring the safety of our employees and have put in place several measures to limit everyone's potential exposure to the virus.

As of today, our manufacturing and shipment of products are occurring normally, and we are meeting all our commitments. There have been minor disruptions in receipt of certain components from suppliers, but we have been able to work around these issues. We are in communication with our critical suppliers and our supply chain remains in good shape. As we all know, the situation remains fluid.

Tennsco remains committed to fulfilling the needs of our customers and will do whatever we can to maintain this level of service. Should conditions change, we will keep you informed. We are in uncharted territory, but we are confident by working together we will get through it.
